

RECALL ALERT

HelloFresh statement regarding FreshRealm recall: October 13, 2025

At HelloFresh, the safety of our customers and the quality of our meals is our highest priority.

Due to the potential presence of Listeria monocytogenes in spinach used by our third-party supplier, FreshRealm, a recall has been issued on two HelloFresh Ready Made Meals. (Specific information from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Services can be found here.)

FreshRealm is the third-party producer of HelloFresh's Ready Made Meals. HelloFresh meal kits are entirely separate; they are packed and shipped from a HelloFresh facility and are not impacted by this issue, nor are any other brands within the HelloFresh portfolio.

The only products impacted by the recall at this time are a small portion of two HelloFresh Ready Made Meals: HelloFresh Cheesy Pulled Pork Pepper Pasta and HelloFresh Unstuffed Peppers with Ground Turkey received between September 6 and October 9, 2025.

We have directly contacted customers who may have received these meals and advised them to immediately discard any affected product.

We take this matter very seriously. Customers with any questions or concerns are encouraged to contact our Customer Care Team.
